

Licensed Practical Nurses (LPNs) play an important role in the health care field, as the people who most often deal directly with patients on a day-to-day basis. From taking care of the needs of the patient to conveying any problems and discomforts to their supervisory nurses and doctors, the LPN frequently serves as the chief communicator for patients.

Meridian's Practical Nursing program uses an online learning management system that allows the curriculum to be available to the student 24 hours/day. The curriculum is divided into nine theory courses and four clinical courses of instruction. Each course has objectives you'll need to achieve before moving to the next course of instruction. In addition to mastering classroom theory, you'll spend time in a variety of clinical settings honing your skills.

The practical nursing program is available Monday through Friday. The classroom opens at 7:30 a.m. each weekday. Evening hours Monday through Thursday will vary depending on instructor availability. The program will be completed in approximately 12 months. Upon successful completion of the program, graduates may apply to take the National Council Licensure Examination for Practical Nurses. Once licensed, you'll be ready for work in hospitals, home health, doctor's offices, long-term care facilities, and various health care agencies.
